

Green Ambassadors Role Description For December 2012 to July 2013 Pilot

Green Ambassadors help Alameda County fulfill the goal of engaging employees in sustainability.

Responsibilities	<ul> <li>Serve as a sustainability liaison in immediate work division:         <ul> <li>Become knowledgeable about County sustainability policies and opportunities</li> <li>Provide colleagues with information about the impacts of daily activities</li> <li>Model new behaviors</li> <li>Inform coworkers of tools to make it easier to make sustainable choices</li> <li>Engage coworkers in green workplace offerings and campaigns</li> </ul> </li> <li>Stay in touch with network:         <ul> <li>Attend scheduled meetings whenever possible and report campaign results</li> <li>Give feedback to network coordinators and other network members</li> <li>Notify network coordinators if unable to continue</li> </ul> </li> </ul>
Time Commitment	<ul> <li>December 2012 to July 2013</li> <li>An average of 2-3 hours per month (ratio of work and volunteer hours to be determined by Green Ambassador &amp; supervisor) consisting of:         <ul> <li>2 hours every other month on campaign outreach activities and reporting</li> <li>1 hour every other month on lunchtime virtual meeting/phone call</li> <li>2-3 hours quarterly at orientation &amp; training sessions</li> </ul> </li> </ul>
Qualifications	<ul> <li>Passion for sustainability and desire to create positive change in the workplace</li> <li>Confidence to introduce and model sustainable workplace practices and to engage peers</li> <li>Willingness to learn and have fun</li> <li>Approval of supervisor to participate</li> </ul>
Benefits	<ul> <li>An opportunity to:         <ul> <li>contribute to environmental conservation</li> <li>share feedback to improve County programs</li> <li>share new tools and resources with colleagues</li> <li>help Green Ambassador's department gain recognition</li> </ul> </li> <li>Expanded professional experience</li> <li>Trainings on sustainability and behavior change topics including County sustainability policies/projects, working effectively in a network, learning from nature, and principles of effective outreach campaigns</li> <li>Expanded network of contacts in other County departments and agencies</li> </ul>
Coordinated by	General Services Agency Sustainability Program

Benefits to Departments	<ul> <li>Creating of a work environment that fosters sustainability and wellness by encouraging employee participation in programs such as clean commuting and green purchasing</li> <li>Boosting morale by addressing broad employee interest in being green at work</li> <li>Leveraging employee initiative to improve processes and increase productivity</li> <li>Saving taxpayer dollars by reducing waste (e.g., conserving paper and energy)</li> <li>Promoting and recognizing the department's green efforts</li> </ul>
Motivations for Pilot	<ul> <li>Surveys indicate that the majority of County employees would like to learn about and participate in more opportunities to be green at work</li> <li>Initiatives to promote behavior change are most effective when they are carried out at the community level and involve direct contact with people</li> <li>Implementation of the climate action plan and other sustainability goals will be enhanced when department liaisons can share information about new programs</li> <li>Benefits such as energy savings and waste reduction will be maximized when more employees are aware of green workplace opportunities</li> <li>Board of Supervisors policy directives including Alameda County Strategic Vision (2008), Alameda County Climate Action Plan for Government Services and Operations (2010), and Climate Principles Resolution (2012) encourage</li> </ul>

employee sustainability education and conservation leadership

Draft: December 4, 2012. Subject to revision upon input of Green Ambassadors and other stakeholders.